¹As a result of its bias to the United States, the fund will tend to perform well versus peers when US securities (including the dollar) outperform. The opposite will also be true when US securities underperform other regions. Performance relates to Share Class A.

■ Manager commentary

Markets picked up where they left off at the end of 2012, with strong returns from assets including equities and high yield credit during January. Global equities added 4.6% last month in US dollar terms, whilst core government bonds alternatively fell by 1.5%, as investors rotated towards the former. The bond bull market of the past 30 years has seen so-called 'safe haven' government bond yields fall to exceptionally low levels. This raises the risk of capital losses for current bond holders, in the event that interest rates begin to revert back towards their historical norms. Dividend yields in the US have been above long term government bond yields since August 2011, in a sign of the imbalances that exist between asset classes. Following the last minute 'fiscal cliff' deal in the US, the risk of a complete impasse and a fiscal tightening of up to 4% of GDP is now off the table, although negotiations over government spending are set to resume in mid May. This, together with a steady stream of positive numbers from the US economy, helped to lift investor sentiment at the start of the new year. Indeed, the market brushed aside the latest growth figures, which showed the US economy contracting by 0.1% between September and December, marking the first quarter-on-quarter decline in output since 2009. In China, news was also broadly positive last month, after figures showed GDP expanding by 7.9% in 2012, reinforcing the view that Beijing has successfully managed a 'soft landing' for the economy. Japan was once again the best performing region in local currency terms, after the newly elected Liberal Democratic Party moved to fulfil its pre-election commitments to pull the economy out of its deflationary era. The government unveiled a JPY 10 trillion fiscal stimulus programme during January, whilst at the same time the Bank of Japan raised its inflation target to 2% (from 1% previously) and committed to an open-ended asset purchase programme to replace the current programme in January 2014.

January continued to provide strong returns for investors, following a decent second half of the year for global equities in 2012. Over the month the MSCI AC (All Countries) World index returned 4.6% in US dollar terms, buoyed by progress on the US fiscal cliff and some reasonable macro data releases. Against this backdrop, the Harmony US Dollar Growth fund delivered its seventh positive month out of the past eight. The fund returned 4.2% in US dollars terms over the period, to bring its 12 month return to 10.8%, net of all fees. From an asset allocation perspective, the fund's underweight to global government bonds and overweight allocation to areas of the credit markets benefited both absolute and relative performance. The fund's holdings in credit securities, as well as the allocation to strategic bond mandates and convertible debt, provided positive returns. The fund remains underweight to government bonds, as we do not see compelling valuations available in this area of the fixed income markets. Looking ahead in 2013, while a degree of welcome optimism appears to be returning to the markets, it is worth bearing in mind that there are still significant risks for investors to contend with in the medium term. Consequently, while we are cautiously optimistic about the prospects for 2013, investors should look to retain a prudent level of diversification in their portfolios and be careful to avoid complacency.

From a manager selection perspective, the Artisan Global Value fund performed broadly in line with the MSCI World index in January, with a gain of 5.0%. The conservative, value-driven approach employed by the San Francisco-based managers has been rewarded, with a return of 21.9% over the past twelve months, some 6% ahead of their benchmark. Looking back at Artisan's performance in 2012, almost all of the fund's holdings generated positive returns over the period, with the largest contributions coming from the likes of Compass Group and Lloyds Banking Group. For the second year in a row, Mastercard was also a key driver behind performance. Laggards over the period included Microsoft and Sankyo, whilst the fund's Japanese holdings also detracted as a group due to the decline in the Japanese yen.
