¹ The peer group median is a composite of (i) global peers and (ii) local peers, in the ratio 1:2. The return of the global peer group each month receives a weight of one-third, and this is added to the return of the local peer group which receives a weight of two-thirds; together these two numbers produce a single composite peer group return. This weighting methodology is consistent with the "normal" asset allocation of the Fund, with a two-thirds bias towards "home" country assets and currencies.

■ Manager commentary

March was undoubtedly an interesting month for news flow, much of which centred on the emerging markets. For example, the market result occurred against the backdrop of escalating tension in Ukraine and concerns over the risk of corporate defaults in China. In March the markets took a circuitous route to end the month essentially flat; with a return of 0.4% in euro terms for the MSCI World. Year to date global equities have returned 1.4%. In March, global emerging market equity enjoyed a much stronger month than has been the case of late and the region's return of 3.3% in euro terms was almost sufficient to drag the year to date returns out of negative territory. The bond markets provided more muted returns in March, but year to date the majority of high quality government bonds are in positive territory. For example, the Citigroup WorldBIG Index returned 0.2% in March and has returned 2.6% year to date, both in euro terms. The March performance of hard currency denominated emerging market debt is notable at 1.2%. Meanwhile the asset class has added 2.5% in euro year to date. Following a difficult 2013, year to date global property securities have returned 7.4% in euro terms.

Against this backdrop the Harmony Euro Balanced Fund returned 0.1% last month. Asset allocation had a mixed impact on the portfolio. While the Fund is neutral to local and global equity, the small overweight to global emerging markets equity contributed positively to relative and absolute performance as these markets outperformed the broader markets. Within the fixed income selection of the Fund, the underweight to global bonds helped marginally as these assets lost a modest amount of value over the month. The Fund's allocation to convertible debt detracted from performance as these markets generated negative total returns for the month. The Fund is overweight cash which did not have a significant impact on relative performance given the modest price moves in both equity and sovereign bond markets. The Fund's allocation to property aided absolute returns as these assets outperformed the broader equity markets.

The Henderson European Special Situations fund returned 1.2% in euro terms in the first quarter and 13.4% over the last twelve months. Meanwhile the Jupiter European Special Situations fund returned 0.4% and 16.6% respectively. Both funds underperformed their benchmark over the quarter and over the full year, with the MSCI Europe ex UK index returning 19.7% over the last twelve months. Underperformance was driven largely by the manager's styles being out of favour over the period, with higher risk deep value strategies typically outperforming driven by strong returns from peripheral European countries and sectors such as financials and property. The managers have limited exposure to these areas and indeed their strategies have paid off over longer time periods – over three years the Henderson and Jupiter funds have returned 39.4% and 35.3% respectively, compared to 29.7% for the benchmark.

Looking forward, we expect modest but positive economic growth in the developed world, and we anticipate that the pace of growth in emerging markets, which has been the subject of negative speculation of late, will be supported and will continue to outstrip the developed world even if it has slowed in recent years. Furthermore, equity valuations remain moderate and in select pockets we are still able to identify significant value. Despite the recent geopolitical uncertainty, the markets have proven to be reasonably supported both by accommodative monetary policy and continued investor interest. We believe that government debt remains expensive, and whilst credit spreads continue to tighten there are still potentially attractive risk adjusted return opportunities in those markets. The ongoing concerns relating to both geopolitics and the path of global growth serve as a salutary reminder of the merits of diversification in a portfolio of this sort. As active investors we must also remain alert to the opportunities provided to us by short term market volatility as it provides valuation opportunities for disciplined investors.
