Manager commentary

Markets continued to be led by central bank policy moves and statements in April. The European Central Bank (ECB) announced details of its quantitative easing programme and started buying assets at a rate of €60 billion per month from the 9th of March. In the meantime the Federal Reserve (Fed) indicated its desire to begin the process of policy normalisation, dropping the word ‘patient’ when referring to its stance on raising interest rates. As a result policy is diverging between these two key central banks, with the ECB in ultra-loose mode while the Fed has stopped asset purchases and is looking to raise interest rates. Meanwhile, the Bank of Japan also remains in ultra-loose mode, continuing to purchase assets at the rate of US$50-60 billion per month.

These actions drove markets, with European and Japanese equities and bonds outperforming significantly in March, while US equities struggled to make progress. European equities added 3.2% in March in local currency terms, taking their rise so far this year to close to 20%, while Japanese equities added 2.1%. Both the Asia Pacific ex Japan and Australian equity markets were marginally down for the month. Meanwhile equity indices in the US and UK declined by 1.6% and 2.0% respectively. Bond markets benefited from the drop in yields in Europe, as well as the benign outlook for inflation. The biggest beneficiaries in March were government bonds whereas credit markets, especially in Europe, failed to match these returns. High yield bonds produced negative returns over the month, but still show good gains year to date. Some of the largest moves were seen in the currency markets, with the euro and Sterling depreciating by around 4% relative to the US dollar over the month, while the Australian Dollar weakened by 2.6%. These moves resulted in declines for most global equity and bond indices when expressed in US dollar terms.

In March the Harmony Europe Diversified Fund returned 1.4% net of all fees in euro terms, increasing the year to date return to 10.8%. The main drivers of this return included the strong performance of our European equity managers as well as currency moves, which enhanced the return of the Fund’s global equity holdings when measured in euro terms. Our two European equity managers, Jupiter and Henderson, delivered returns of 3.9% and 3.4% respectively, thereby outperforming the return of their benchmark. Over six months they have delivered remarkable returns of 21.2% and 25.2% respectively in euro terms, again outperforming the 18.6% return of the market. Most of the Fund’s international equity holdings also contributed small positive returns during March, along with most fixed income holdings including RWC Asian Convertibles (+1.6%) and Muzinich Emerging Markets (+0.4%). The main detractors from performance were the Fund’s two holdings in deep value orientated equity managers, represented by the Schroder Recovery (-3.2%) and Kopernik Global Equity (-3.9%) funds.

One significant change was made to the portfolio during March: after conducting a detailed research review into the global listed real estate sector, reviewing and meeting dozens of managers, we have replaced our previous incumbent manager in this sector, Cohen & Steers, with Third Avenue. We believe now is a good time to make this manager change in the Harmony funds; Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) have performed very well in recent years, with investors being attracted to the relatively high dividend yields on offer, leading to higher valuations across the sector. Third Avenue look beyond the typical universe of other listed real estate strategies in order to identify securities that offer more attractive valuations and better growth potential and we believe their strategy is capable of delivering long term outperformance compared to the sector.

Third Value is a specialist value orientated manager based in New York, managing approximately $12bn across various strategies including Global, US Small Cap, International and Real Estate equity as well as a focused credit strategy. They are owned by AMG, a global asset management company that also owns several other boutique investment management firms that all act autonomously from each other. Third Avenue’s Real Estate Value strategy was launched in 1998 and is managed by a dedicated team of three portfolio managers and three analysts. Michael Winner, one of three co-portfolio managers, has managed the strategy since inception, and was joined by Jason Wolf and Ryan Dobratz in 2004 and 2006 respectively. The team members are highly focused on this strategy and very experienced, with each benefiting from additional real estate related experience prior to starting their current roles. Since inception the strategy has been managed according to a long term value orientated approach, investing in out of favour securities with a focus on total return and capital appreciation. The team mostly seek exposure to prime real estate in core markets and have a broad investable universe which includes equities that are classified as REITs, Real Estate Operating Companies or homebuilders as well as businesses that are focused on providing real estate related services. These securities offer the diversification benefit and long term return potential of real estate, but with the liquidity of an equity security. The team consistently implement a strong and sensible investment process and the resultant portfolio, which is highly differentiated from both the benchmark and peers, is concentrated in only 30-40 positions with the top ten holdings usually accounting for 40-50% of the Fund. This concentrated approach allows them to take high conviction positions. Holdings are typically divided between strategic positions, with a five to ten year investment horizon, and tactical positions, with a shorter term outlook of two or three years.
