■ Manager commentary

Equity markets enjoyed a strong end to 2016 with the MSCI World index gaining 2.4% in local currency terms. Global bond prices continued their downward trend, falling by 0.3% amid higher inflation expectations for the coming year. The headline economic event over the period was the Federal Open Market Committee's decision to increase the US Federal Reserve rate, from a bound of 0.25-0.50% to 0.50-0.75%, for only the second time since the Financial Crisis. The move ensured that momentum in currency markets remained firmly with the US dollar, which gained 0.7% in value relative to a weighted basket of all other major currencies, while yields on US 10-year Treasuries rose 6.3 basis points to 2.44%, their highest monthly close since September 2014.

The Harmony US Dollar Growth fund returned 0.6% in December in US dollar terms net of fees, resulting in a fourth quarter return of -0.6%. In total over 2016 the fund gained 5.5%, compared to the 11.2% return of the US equity market over the same period. The US market also performed strongly over the month and quarter, gaining 1.9% and 3.7% over the respective periods. Markets have been buoyed by optimistic outlooks for US growth in 2017, following the release of some strong labour market and economic data to end the year; which added to expectations of higher growth resulting from President elect Donald Trump's expansionary mandate. The fund has lagged the strong return of the local equity market in recent months due to the diversification into global equities and other asset classes, such as fixed income and property, all of which have failed to keep pace with US equities. Indeed, international developed market equities underperformed the US market by 4.2% and 9.2% over the quarter and year respectively in US dollar terms.

The Fed's aforementioned rate rise is somewhat representative of the positive expectations for economic growth and the resulting investment outlook for the coming year. Our key message heading into 2017 is this: we are at a major inflection point in an uncertain world. We are likely to see further weakness in bond markets, but in many ways this marks a healthy return to some degree of normality. It does not signal the end of the bull market in equities, which have a good valuation cushion against bonds and which will benefit from rising growth and earnings. The prospect of a pick-up in growth and inflation is supportive, while a return to boom-bust seems a very distant prospect given the structural headwinds to growth. This cycle therefore has much further to run.

There will be plenty of bumps along the way but by prudent diversification and taking advantage of valuation opportunities as they arise, good real returns are available. To capture these it will be vital to stay invested, ride out the bumps and focus on the longer term. Anything less invariably leads to disappointment.
