■ Manager commentary

The decision was taken to leave target asset allocation unchanged in April. We last adjusted positioning in January, when we reduced overall risk levels by trimming equity holdings and added a small position in inflation-linked government bonds. There was one change to the underlying manager selection in April, as we switched our global listed infrastructure manager from First State to Maple Brown Abbott. We still consider the First State infrastructure team to be one of the leading managers in this area but their assets under management have grown meaningfully in recent years which we believe constrains them relative to Maple Brown Abbott.

Maple Brown Abbott is a privately owned Australian investment management company specialising in the management of Global Listed Infrastructure, Australian and Asian equity strategies. Based in Sydney, they have a staff of 50 of which 23 are dedicated investment professionals. The infrastructure capability was set up in late 2012 by the current team who joined from Macquarie where they had been running a very similar strategy. They invest with a bottom-up, absolute return orientated approach, targeting long term returns of 5.5% above inflation with relatively low volatility, through investments in listed equities. Their universe comprises companies that provide essential services with limited substitution risk and that benefit from strategic (often monopoly) positions, stable long term cash flows and predictable growth (limited cyclicality). These attributes are assessed via in-depth fundamental research. Significant holdings currently include National Grid, Flughafen Zuerich and Crown Castle International.
