■ Manager commentary

We began implementing several asset allocation and manager selection changes in the Portfolio during August, in order to incorporate three new liquid alternative strategies. These adjustments are being made to enhance the diversification of the portfolios into asset classes which are non-correlated with traditional assets and may provide some protection in more difficult market conditions. They will be completed during early September and will result in a higher allocation to liquid alternative strategies, of between 5%-10% of each Portfolio depending on the risk profile and currency/regional focus, which will be balanced by slightly lower convertible bond and corporate credit allocations. These strategies are all highly liquid, highly transparent and are accessible via UCITS funds with fees comparable to those of more traditional managers. Our team at Momentum have conducted extensive investment and operational due diligence ahead of the decision to allocate to these strategies. A short introduction to each new strategy follows.

The Allianz Structured Return strategy buys and sells liquid exchange traded options on the S&P 500 index with the aim of generating a net return of 4-6% per annum with low volatility. The strategy seeks to take advantage of fundamentally mispriced options; it does not take speculative positions, does not sell volatility outright and is not a directional strategy. Such mispricing arises due to irrational investor behaviour – investors typically pay-up for protection after the event – and from a persistent risk premium attached to put (downside) protection by certain investors that need to limit downside risk.

The Aberdeen Liquid Alternative Multi Asset Risk Premia strategy aims to harness well-established alternative risk premia via Goldman Sachs' proprietary indices. Such risk premia should have little to no correlation with traditional long only asset classes. The portfolio currently includes 18 risk premia strategies across equities, fixed income, currencies and commodities with a return objective of 7% above cash per annum and a volatility target of 10%. The strategy is managed by the alternatives team at Aberdeen Standard Investments which includes 26 investment professionals and is supported by a risk management team, an operational due diligence team and a portfolio construction team.

Neuberger Berman Uncorrelated Strategies is a multi-strategy alternatives fund that uses specialist, third party hedge fund managers to construct a diversified portfolio. The management team, based in New York and London, aims to generate uncorrelated returns of 5% above cash per annum over the course of a market cycle by investing in strategies that are expected to have no persistent correlation to traditional asset classes. There are currently five underlying managers that follow strategies including statistical arbitrage, trend following and macro.
